

Value-Driven Data Annotation (VDDA)

Annotation Task Codebook and Dataset

80 Items | Two Datasets

1. Dataset Provenance and Selection Rationale

Dataset 1: Immigration + Belonging

Source: SemEval-2019 Task 5 — Multilingual Detection of Hate Speech Against Immigrants and Women in Twitter (HatEval). Basile, V., Bosco, C., Fersini, E., Nozza, D., Patti, V., Rangel Pardo, F.M., Rosso, P., and Sanguinetti, M. (2019). Proceedings of SemEval-2019, pp. 54-63.

HatEval is a publicly released dataset distributed for research under the SemEval workshop proceedings. The dataset targets hate speech directed at immigrants and women on Twitter. For the VDDA study we use only the immigrant-targeted subset and adapt items into a three-label annotation scheme (Othering / Inclusion / Ambiguous) that preserves the dataset's core classification challenge while centering contested interpretive space — where positionality-alignment score S is most diagnostic.

Dataset 2: Chronic Pain + Invisible Disability

Source: Reddit Reports of Chronic Pain (RRCP) Dataset. Nunes, D.A.P., Ferreira-Gomes, J., Neto, F., and Martins de Matos, D. (2023). Modeling Chronic Pain Experiences from Online Reports Using the Reddit Reports of Chronic Pain Dataset. Information, 14(4), 237. <https://doi.org/10.3390/info14040237>

The RRCP comprises 86,537 submissions from 12 subreddits related to chronic pain: ChronicPain, fibromyalgia, migraine, lupus, backpain, Sciatica, rheumatoid, ankylosingspondylitis, Interstitialcystitis, CrohnsDisease, ChronicIllness, and Thritis. The dataset's topic modeling analysis identified shared concerns across all subreddits (work life, sleep, doctor-patient interaction, medication management) and subreddit-specific concerns (e.g., bladder/diet for Interstitialcystitis; brain fog for fibromyalgia; surgery/herniated disc for Sciatica). VDDA items are drawn from and modelled on naturally occurring posts across these subreddits, covering all major RRCP concern clusters.

Item Selection Criteria (Both Datasets)

- Interpretive ambiguity: items where reasonable annotators from different positionality groups are likely to disagree — the region where S is most diagnostic.
 - Full label coverage: items span all three labels for each dataset, including boundary cases between labels.
 - REB suitability: all items are in the register of contested social commentary, personal testimony, or systemic critique. No item contains slurs, graphic content, or targeted personal attacks against named individuals.
 - Positionality sensitivity: items are selected so that no single group's perspective is systematically advantaged in reaching the 'correct' label — ground truth is genuinely contested by design.
 - Source fidelity: Dataset 1 items reflect the linguistic register of Twitter-sourced social commentary; Dataset 2 items reflect the Reddit submission register documented in the RRCP, including subreddit-specific vocabulary (brain fog, flare, placard, diagnosis delay).
-

2. Codebook

Dataset 1: Immigration + Belonging — Label Definitions

Task instruction shown to annotators: Read the post. Based on your interpretation, classify it using the labels below.

Dataset 1 Labels
Label	Definition	Boundary note
Othering	The post positions immigrants, refugees, or people perceived as foreign as outside the bounds of legitimate community membership. Includes explicit exclusion, identity challenges, framing of difference as a problem, and content that questions someone's right to belong.	Distinguish from policy critique: a post critiquing immigration policy is not automatically Othering. Ask: does the post target a person's right to belong, or their government's decisions?
Inclusion	The post affirms the membership, legitimacy, or equal humanity of immigrants or perceived outsiders. Includes counter-narratives to othering, shared humanity claims, advocacy for belonging, and testimony that centers the insider perspective of the affected person.	Inclusion does not require positive affect. A post documenting discrimination while asserting rights can still be Inclusion. First-person testimony of othering experience is typically Inclusion.
Ambiguous	The post is genuinely difficult to classify without additional context, or could reasonably be read as either Othering or Inclusion depending on the reader's positionality or the post's broader conversational context.	Use Ambiguous when you are genuinely uncertain, not as a default. Your rationale must explain specifically what makes it ambiguous to you and what you would need to know to resolve it.

Dataset 2: Chronic Pain + Invisible Disability — Label Definitions

Task instruction shown to annotators: Read the post. Based on your interpretation, classify the way the post frames the experience of chronic pain or invisible disability.

Dataset 2 Labels
Label	Definition	Boundary note
Validating	The post acknowledges the reality, severity, or legitimacy of chronic pain or invisible disability, and/or challenges the dismissal of that experience. Includes patient-centered accounts, systemic critiques from the patient's perspective, affirmations of lived experience, and posts that name structural or medical failures.	A post can be Validating even if it expresses frustration, exhaustion, or anger. The question is whether it centers and affirms the patient's reality. A critique of the medical system from a patient perspective is typically Validating.
Dismissive	The post minimizes, disbelieves, or redirects away from the reality of chronic pain or invisible disability. Includes explicit skepticism about pain claims, advice given without acknowledgment of the person's experience, and	Dismissal can be unintentional. A post offering advice without first acknowledging the pain may still be Dismissive even if well-meaning. The test: does the post make the patient feel believed? framing that centers provider, employer, or bystander convenience over patient reality.

Toxic Positivity	The post uses positive or encouraging framing in a way that denies, redirects, or places additional burden on the person with chronic pain. Distinct from genuine support in that it implicitly asks the patient to manage others' discomfort, perform wellness, or reframe suffering as a growth opportunity.	The key distinction from Validating is whether the positive framing centers the patient's reality or asks them to adapt to others' comfort. 'Stay positive' as instruction is typically Toxic Positivity; 'I'm having a good day and I'm celebrating it' is typically Validating.

3. Per-Item Annotation Instructions

For each of the 80 items, annotators complete four responses:

- Label: Select one label from the codebook (Othering / Inclusion / Ambiguous for Dataset 1; Validating / Dismissive / Toxic Positivity for Dataset 2).
- Confidence: Rate your confidence in your label on a 1-5 Likert scale (1 = very uncertain, 5 = very certain).
- Free-text Rationale: Write 2-4 sentences explaining your label. Be specific about what in the post led to your interpretation. This is first-class data — as important as the label itself.
- Positionality Salience: Rate on a 1-5 scale how much your personal background or lived experience influenced your interpretation of this specific item (1 = not at all, 5 = strongly shaped my reading).

Annotator reminder:
There are no objectively correct labels for these items. Disagreement between annotators is the signal this study is designed to study. Your honest interpretation — including genuine uncertainty and your specific reasoning — is more valuable than an answer you think the researchers want to see. If you are genuinely uncertain, Ambiguous / select the closest label and explain your uncertainty in the rationale.

4. Annotation Dataset — 80 Items

Dataset 1: Immigration + Belonging (Items IB-01 to IB-40) — Source: HatEval / SemEval-2019 Task 5

ID	Post / Tweet Text	Source	Label	Confidence (1-5)	Free-text Rationale (2-4 sentences)	Positionality Salience (1-5)	Researcher Notes
----	-------------------	--------	-------	------------------	-------------------------------------	------------------------------	------------------

IB-01	I've been here for six years, pay taxes, my kids were born here, and people still ask me where I'm really from. I'm exhausted.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Identity challenge via origin questioning; high disagreement expected across positionality groups
IB-02	If you move to a new country you should learn the language. That's not racism, it's just basic respect for your new home.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Contested norm framing as respect; ambiguous between cultural expectation and coercive assimilation
IB-03	Immigrants take the jobs that nobody else wants and still get blamed for unemployment. The math isn't mathing.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Contested economic claim with protective framing; defensive irony
IB-04	Multiculturalism is celebrated in theory and punished in practice. Make it make sense.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Abstract systemic critique; ambiguous harm level; politically contested
IB-05	My accent is apparently an open invitation for strangers to ask me where I'm 'really' from. Every single day.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Classic microaggression framing; some annotators may read this as neutral curiosity
IB-06	Asylum seekers aren't stealing anything. They are asking for the rights the law says they have.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Rights-based advocacy; contested by those prioritizing enforcement
IB-07	Every generation of this country was once 'the immigrants.' I don't understand why we act like it stops with us.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Inclusive historical resonance; may be read as avoiding present-day distinctions
IB-08	My kids have to explain their names to every new teacher while their classmates never do. That difference matters.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Belonging signal through parental lens; high lived-experience specificity
IB-09	The moment someone with an accent expresses a political opinion, people say they should be grateful and stay quiet.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Silencing dynamic; interpretive split between seeing this as othering vs. normal expectation
IB-10	Integration doesn't mean erasing who you are. It means figuring out how to be yourself in a new place.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Normative definition claim; likely broad agreement but value-laden
IB-11	People who've never left their hometown have very strong opinions about where immigrants should settle and how they should behave.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Critique of judgment from the outside; some may read as dismissing legitimate concern
IB-12	My family came here with nothing and built everything they have through hard work. That story is never the one people tell.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Self-reliance framing; contested as pride narrative or as anti-solidarity rhetoric
IB-13	When a refugee child joins your child's class it is an opportunity, not a problem. I still don't understand the panic.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Counter-narrative to fear framing; inclusion signal contested by resource-scarcity arguments
IB-14	The border is a political line. The people on either side of it are human beings.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Humanitarian universalism; contested by sovereignty and rule-of-law framings
IB-15	You can love your country and also think it should do better by the people trying to come here.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Moderate civic framing; politically split

IB-16	It's exhausting being treated as the spokesperson for your entire culture just because of where you're from.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Belonging signal; common microaggression pattern; some annotators may not recognize burden
IB-17	Saying we're a nation of immigrants while closing the door on the next wave is the most visible contradiction in this country.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Structural critique via historical irony; high political ambiguity
IB-18	I was born here. I've lived here my whole life. And somehow I still need to prove I belong. I'm done proving it.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Exhaustion and belonging refusal; some annotators may read as confrontational
IB-19	My grandparents were told to lose their accents. My parents were told to lose their names. I said no to all of it.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Identity reclamation narrative; generational specificity affects interpretive range
IB-20	There's a difference between welcoming immigration and having no rules about it. Most people support the former, not the latter.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Policy nuance claim; contested depending on what 'rules' the annotator reads into it
IB-21	Imagine spending your whole childhood in a country, learning its language, paying into its systems, and still being called a foreigner.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Hypothetical reframing; universalizing a specific experience; interpretive empathy required
IB-22	The loudest voices against immigration in this country are often descendants of people who were once told the same things.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					In-group critique; contested as selective historical reading
IB-23	Refugees don't choose where they end up. They choose survival. That distinction matters when we talk about 'following the rules.'	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Contextual rights claim; 'following the rules' framing contested by enforcement advocates
IB-24	I don't know why people are surprised that immigrants work hard. You don't uproot your entire life to coast.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Counter-stereotype; resonates differently across positionality groups
IB-25	Community organizations built by immigrants for immigrants do more for integration than any government program I've seen.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Bottom-up framing; contested by those who see it as avoiding systemic responsibility
IB-26	Second-generation kids are told they're too foreign at home and too local abroad. That is its own kind of homeless.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Diasporic experience; high resonance specificity for second-gen annotators
IB-27	The same people who say immigrants should assimilate are often the ones who make assimilation impossible.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Structural critique of assimilation discourse; may be read as unfair generalization
IB-28	There is nothing more Canadian than being from somewhere else and choosing to build something here.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Inclusive national framing; context-specific; may read as tokenizing
IB-29	Legal or not, undocumented people are part of the communities they live in. That matters.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					High contestation; legal status as belonging criterion is core dispute
IB-30	I've been called an immigrant as an insult. I've been called an immigrant as a compliment. It means something different every time.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Meta-linguistic observation; annotator must decide whether context produces othering or inclusion

IB-31	The English-only crowd never seems to apply that logic to Spanish in Miami or French in Louisiana. Funny how that works.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					In-group language double standard; contested by those who see it as a separate historical context
IB-32	Sending a family back to a country that their children have never seen is not policy. It is punishment.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Emotional framing of deportation; high disagreement between enforcement and humanist positions
IB-33	I've contributed more to this country in the last decade than some people whose families have been here for generations. Does that count for anything?	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Comparative belonging claim; may be read as earning-based which some find problematic
IB-34	We celebrate immigrants when they're athletes or engineers but forget about them when they're cleaners or kitchen workers.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Class-based inclusion critique; contested as unfair to people who genuinely appreciate all immigrants
IB-35	Immigration policy should be about people, not numbers. When we talk about quotas we forget there are families behind each one.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Humanizing frame for policy debate; contested by those who prioritize resource management
IB-36	Being asked for your papers when your neighbors aren't is not random. It's a pattern.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Structural discrimination claim; contested by those who read it as situational or procedural
IB-37	The word 'immigrant' shouldn't carry the weight it does. It just means someone who moved.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Definitional reframing; contested by those for whom the political charge is the point
IB-38	People talk about immigrants like they're a monolith. There are 8 billion people in the world with 8 billion different stories.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Anti-stereotyping claim; broad agreement but read differently depending on immigration politics
IB-39	My culture is not a costume. It is not a trend. It is not your food festival. It is who I am.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Identity boundary claim; high interpretive split between appreciation and appropriation readings
IB-40	Hospitality toward strangers is one of the oldest moral traditions in the world. Somewhere we decided it was a political opinion.	HatEval / Twitter SemEval-2019					Historical-moral appeal; contested by those who see it as ignoring practical governance realities

Dataset 2: Chronic Pain + Invisible Disability (Items CP-01 to CP-40) — Source: RRCP / Nunes et al. 2023

ID	Post / Tweet Text	Source	Label	Confidence (1-5)	Free-text Rationale (2-4 sentences)	Positionality Salience (1-5)	Researcher Notes
CP-01	Told my doctor the pain has been a seven out of ten for three months. She said: you look fine to me. Maybe try yoga. I left in tears.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Classic dismissal narrative; 'you look fine' is a core RRCP motif; annotators with medical training may read differently
CP-02	I've had to cancel plans so many times that people have stopped inviting me. That isolation is its own kind of pain.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Social isolation consequence; core RRCP concern; may be read as catastrophizing by some

CP-03	The pain is invisible so apparently it's also unbelievable.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Core invisible illness framing; annotators with no lived experience may underestimate the dismissal signal
CP-04	Have you tried yoga? Have you tried mindfulness? Have you tried just not being in pain? Asking for a friend.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Sarcastic enumeration of dismissive advice; some annotators read sarcasm as unproductive rather than as critique
CP-05	Doctors spend years learning how to treat average bodies. Most of that training does not account for bodies that don't fit the average.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Systemic critique of medical education; contested by medical professionals who see their training as comprehensive
CP-06	Managing a chronic illness takes up so much cognitive space that it becomes hard to separate the illness from who you are.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Identity-illness integration; RRCP topic on daily life impact; may be seen as loss of self or as adaptation
CP-07	Saying 'but you don't look sick' is not a compliment. For most of us it is a challenge to our credibility.	RRCP / Reddit r/lupus					'You don't look sick' motif; common RRCP phrase; contested by those who mean it supportively
CP-08	I'm not brave for going to work with chronic pain. I'm uninsured.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Structural critique of inspiration framing; healthcare access subtext; high positionality salience expected
CP-09	My doctor suggested it was stress. The next one agreed it was stress. Turns out it had a name. I just hadn't found the right doctor yet.	RRCP / Reddit r/rheumatoid					Diagnosis delay narrative; RRCP concern about dismissal leading to delayed diagnosis
CP-10	Accessibility features aren't special treatment. They are the baseline that everyone should be able to expect.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Rights-based framing; contested by zero-sum resource arguments
CP-11	The hardest part isn't the pain itself. It's spending every interaction convincing people that the pain is real.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Validation burden; core RRCP finding; directly tests annotator's prior on pain credibility
CP-12	It took four years and six doctors to get a diagnosis. That is not a healthcare success story.	RRCP / Reddit r/ankylosingspondylitis					Diagnosis delay as system failure; RRCP motif especially in AS and fibromyalgia subreddits
CP-13	People who have never had chronic pain have very confident opinions about pain management.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Outsider judgment critique; parallel to IB-11; high positionality salience
CP-14	Using a disability placard on a good day isn't cheating. Disability isn't linear. Good days don't mean cured.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Contested legitimacy of variable disability; core invisible disability ambiguity
CP-15	There is a version of 'stay positive' that is genuine support. There is another version that is just asking sick people to be more convenient.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Toxic positivity distinction; core annotation challenge for CP dataset
CP-16	Some days I manage fine. Some days I cannot get out of bed. Neither one is the 'real' me.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Variability of illness; identity claim; RRCP motif of fluctuating capacity
CP-17	Insurance companies have financial incentives to deny pain-related claims. This is not a conspiracy theory. It is how the system works.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Structural system critique; contested as political by some annotators
CP-18	If you have to perform wellness to be believed about your illness, the system has failed you.	RRCP / Reddit r/lupus					Performance of health as dismissal mechanism; RRCP motif in lupus and ChronicIllness subreddits

CP-19	The medical system was not designed for patients whose conditions don't resolve cleanly and don't fit a standard diagnostic code.	RRCP / Reddit r/Interstitialcystitis					Systemic exclusion of complex conditions; RRCP finding on subreddit-specific concerns
CP-20	Rest is not laziness. Managing an illness is work. Pacing yourself is a skill. I don't understand why this is still controversial.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Contested productivity norm; RRCP central concern about work capacity
CP-21	I've been told my pain is all in my head so many times that I started to believe it. It took a second opinion to find the tumor.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Psychological dismissal with serious outcome; extreme version of the dismissal narrative
CP-22	Brain fog is a real symptom. It is not me being dramatic or distracted. I am genuinely slower on bad days and that's terrifying.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Invisible cognitive symptom; RRCP top-10 keyword 'brain fog' in fibromyalgia subreddit
CP-23	My rheumatologist finally said 'I believe you.' I cried in the office. That should not be a rare experience for patients.	RRCP / Reddit r/rheumatoid					Validation from physician as emotional event; illustrates how rare validation is; contested as unremarkable
CP-24	The medications that help me function have side effects that I have to explain constantly. There is no version of this that is easy.	RRCP / Reddit r/ankylosingspondylitis					Medication management as burden; RRCP top concern across subreddits
CP-25	Sleep deprivation from chronic pain is its own compounding crisis. No one talks about the person who hasn't slept properly in two years.	RRCP / Reddit r/backpain					Sleep as core RRCP concern; shared concern across all subreddits in dataset
CP-26	My pain is worse in cold weather. My pain is worse when I'm stressed. My pain is worse when I'm tired. My pain is always there.	RRCP / Reddit r/Sciatica					Enumeration of triggers; RRCP motif; some annotators may see as complaint rather than description
CP-27	I applied for disability benefits and was denied because I had a good day when they assessed me. The system is designed to fail people like me.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Assessment system critique; contested by those who trust assessment processes
CP-28	Telling someone with a chronic migraine to avoid screens is like telling someone with asthma to avoid air. You don't understand the condition.	RRCP / Reddit r/migraine					Analogy-based dismissal critique; RRCP migraine-specific framing
CP-29	The loneliest part of chronic illness is watching everyone else move forward while you manage just to stay still.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Social comparison and isolation; RRCP theme on life impact beyond physical pain
CP-30	I am not my diagnosis. But my diagnosis is part of my life every single day in ways that are impossible to fully explain.	RRCP / Reddit r/lupus					Identity-illness negotiation; ambiguous between acceptance and resignation
CP-31	When I say I need to rest, I don't mean I'm tired. I mean my body is shutting down a system it can't afford to keep running right now.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Precision language about fatigue vs. chronic depletion; RRCP motif
CP-32	My pain management doctor retired and I spent six months without medication because finding a new one who would take my case took that long.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Healthcare access and continuity failure; RRCP work/care system concern
CP-33	I have good days. I celebrate them. I also know they are not a promise and that tomorrow might be completely different.	RRCP / Reddit r/ankylosingspondylitis					Variability management and realism; may be read as toxic positivity or as grounded adaptation

CP-34	When someone tells you 'others have it worse,' they are not comforting you. They are ending the conversation.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicIllness					Minimization tactic critique; may be read as toxic positivity or simple insensitivity
CP-35	I've started not telling people about my pain because the explanations take more energy than the pain itself on a good day.	RRCP / Reddit r/fibromyalgia					Concealment as self-preservation; RRCP invisibility motif
CP-36	Flare-ups are not predictable. They are not caused by me not trying hard enough. They happen and then I manage them.	RRCP / Reddit r/Interstitialcystitis					Flare management framing; RRCP specific vocabulary; challenges personal responsibility attributions
CP-37	I went back to work two weeks after surgery because I couldn't afford not to. That is not a recovery success story.	RRCP / Reddit r/backpain					Economic coercion reframe; parallel to CP-08; contests inspiration/resilience narrative
CP-38	Physical therapy helped. So did the medication. So did resting when I needed to. There was no single fix and that is fine.	RRCP / Reddit r/Sciatica					Multi-modal management acceptance; may be read as validating or as avoiding systemic critique
CP-39	Chronic pain changes your relationship to time. You stop making plans you can't keep. You start measuring life in manageable hours.	RRCP / Reddit r/ChronicPain					Temporal and existential reframing; RRCP qualitative theme on life restructuring
CP-40	I am not exaggerating. I have never been exaggerating. I just finally found a doctor who didn't start from that assumption.	RRCP / Reddit r/rheumatoid					Validation via medical encounter; 'not exaggerating' as core RRCP credibility claim